THANK YOU FOR HELPING US INSPIRE
Science is an inquiry rooted in the joys of discovery. For nearly 200 years, the EcoTarium has encouraged lifelong learning through the exploration of the world around us – and beyond! Generations of families and community leaders have begun their own science adventures by stepping through our doors. This work is embodied in our mission “to inspire a passion for science and nature.”

2017 was a tremendous year for the EcoTarium! We created new partnerships, were visited by more than 174,000 guests, opened the award-winning exhibit, City Science: The Science You Live, and even welcomed a new baby otter into the museum’s family.

Our success is thanks to the hundreds of people who help the museum each year by volunteering, donating, and being advocates for science education in the local community. In this Annual Report, we shine a spotlight on several special people who contributed to the museum in myriad and individualized ways.

To all our friends - past and present, near and far - thank you for your support.

Raymond L. Quinlan
Chair of the Board

Patricia Crawford
Interim Executive Director
Sreshtaa Rajesh
Volunteer & Former Summer Discovery Camp Junior Counselor

You started as a junior counselor and now work in the Curator’s Workshop, which area of the museum has become most important to you?
My favorite part of the museum is the African Communities exhibit. Everything about that room is so serene and after I volunteer, I often go there for some quiet. There is so much to learn, all the animals are so beautiful, and overall, it is definitely a highlight for me.

Share one of your favorite parts of your volunteer experience so far.
Working with children, which I have had the fortune to do in my position as a volunteer as well as a junior counselor. I honestly have learned so much from being around them, including how to be a good and patient role model. Their enthusiasm is never ending, and being around them fuels my excitement to share science. It is so nice to see a new generation of scientists, doctors, and engineers show up at the EcoTarium.

How did your passion for science develop?
My passion for science developed at a very young age when my mom used to read Astronomy books with me. By kindergarten, I knew the order of the planets, and in fifth grade, I told everybody that I would be a chemist, taking inspiration from the mad scientists that I would see on children’s shows. My grandfather and I would always sit down in the evenings and watch Discovery Channel’s “How It’s Made,” and “How the Universe Works.” Seeing young children at the EcoTarium reminds me of myself when I was younger.
Edward M. Augustus, Jr.
City Manager

How do you think the museum is making a difference in the City?
The EcoTarium is one of our premier cultural assets, drawing tens of thousands of visitors from both the city and beyond. It’s also one of our great educational institutions, teaching children the wonders of science and the environment. It’s an engaging museum which not only stimulates a child’s imagination but also encourages them to explore related career paths.

Any dreams or wishes for the EcoTarium in the future?
My hope is that the EcoTarium continues to do what it has always done—innovate, evolve and meet the changing needs of our community while remaining a relevant and vibrant institution in our city.

Lois Meyer
Long-Time Volunteer

How did you first get involved?
My husband and I moved to Massachusetts in 1998 and our new neighbor was a volunteer at the EcoTarium. The neighbor suggested I volunteer as well, and I signed up; I’ve been volunteering ever since! I first started volunteering with the museum’s preschool programs, then the visitor services team, the development team, and others!

What is the most important part of the museum?
Although my grandchildren enjoy the train and Nature Explore, I think there is something more important to me. I greatly admire the exhibit staff since I watched them develop and build the City Science Exhibit. It was very impressive watching the huge mural be put up after seeing the small model that was built. That is only one thing I admire about the staff, exhibit and otherwise.
We rang in the New Year with a Day of Family Fun at our annual Noon Year’s Eve celebration with two kid-friendly countdowns.

A sell out success with special programming, telescope viewing, and Star Wars characters from the 501st NE Garrison.

A Christmas Journey

Families enjoyed the magic of the season with a holiday tale, a trip to the North Pole in our Planetarium, hot cocoa, cookies, and a visit with Santa.

8 wonderful nights of our all-ages Halloween spectacular with more than 3,000 professionally carved pumpkins lit up in stunning displays.

Continued our 5-year partnership to enhance science-based learning in the community while increasing the impact of both organizations in central Massachusetts.

Guests learned that the way we design and build our cities has many impacts on people, animals, civic life, and the larger environment.

Wild Cat Station brings mountain lions and native bird species to the EcoTarium in a new spectacular outdoor exhibit. Designed to be an intimate and memorable experience, Wild Cat Station provides greater opportunity for educational programming, and enhances our capacity to deliver excellent care for our wildlife.

“It's a marvelous experience working with and learning from such a group of knowledgeable museum professionals.”
- James (Kip) Bagaglio, Exhibit Volunteer

“I am a wildlife volunteer at the EcoTarium. I really enjoy working with the wildlife and I have learned a lot since I started. I intend to continue volunteering, as it is something I look forward to every week. Helping out at some of the museum special events is fun, too. I LOVE animals and volunteering with the wildlife is a fun and rewarding experience.”
- Diane Newland, Wildlife Volunteer

“Last year I had the best summer of my life. It was my first (volunteering) at the EcoTarium summer camp, but definitely not my last!”
- Abigail Friedline, Summer Discovery Camp Junior Counselor
